Jared Jameson recognized as top adviser by Reuters AdvicePoint

SUGAR LAND, TX (March 26, 2008) – Jared Jameson, vice president of WJ Interests, LLC, has been named to the inaugural Top Advisors 2008 list compiled by Reuters. The list was published in conjunction with the roll out of Reuters AdvicePoint, an online forum in which investors can easily find financial advisors and exports tailored to their specific needs.

"I'm excited to be named to the Top Advisors list," Jameson said. "The honor reflects my commitment to provide objective, comprehensive advice to our clients."

Candidates for Top Advisors 2008 were chosen from Reuters' database of almost 500 registered representatives and investment advisors from across the US. Criteria considered included location, assets under management and client focus.

Jameson received his MBA in Finance from the University of Texas at Austin in 1993. Since graduating, Jared has specialized in equity and fixed-income research and analysis. Jared also is a certified financial planner™ and a registered investment advisor with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). Jared has an in-depth knowledge of the application of technology to investment analysis, including expertise in the application of Modern Portfolio Theory and asset allocation as used in WJ Interests' practice.
