WJ Interests adds Derek Finley as associate advisor

SUGAR LAND, TX (June 21, 2008) – WJ Interests, LLC, welcomes J. Derek Finley as associate planner. Finley is the first associate to be added to the financial planning and asset management firm since the company was founded by father-and-son partners Bill Jameson and Jared Jameson in 1996.

“We have seen nothing but growth in our 12-year history,” said Bill Jameson. “It was time to add one more advisor to the team to keep our service level as high as it’s always been.”

Finley is a December 2007 graduate of the financial planning program at Texas Tech University, one of the few college programs in financial planning in the country. During his time at Tech, he was a peer counselor for the Red to Black program, which helps students, faculty and staff members learn how to better manage their finances and get out of debt. He worked in summer 2007 as an intern for WJ Interests, and was invited to join the firm permanently after his graduation.

“We were able to visit Texas Tech and interview several students through the university’s career development program,” Jared Jameson said. “Derek made a good impression on us in his interview, and quickly proved himself an asset as an intern. Bringing him in permanently just made good sense.”
